Comment text:

To divide in two the conservation area of Erith and remove the historic houses and Church in the Lesney Park area is outrageous, these are the dwellings of the founders of the town who contributed to its rapid industrial growth and wealth. The Carnegie library building, the Town Hall, the Erith Railway station, Cross Keys Public House and indeed the River Thames itself all with wonderful historical significance deserve to continue together to be Erith Ward. In modern times the changing make-up of the town is reflected in a diverse population who benefit much from the influence of those older Erith families who continue their association with the town. Are you aware that the Parish boundaries are currently under review and being enacted in quite the reverse of your plans. I submit my comments in line with number 2 of your criteria, referring to community satisfaction. Erith Town Forum ask you to reconsider you plans and continue to maintain Erith Ward.
