PROPOSALS FOR THE FUTURE ELECTORAL ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE COUNTY OF HERTFORDSHIRE

1. The last Order under Section 51 of the Local Government Act 1972 in relation to electoral arrangements for districts in the county of Hertfordshire was made on 29 November 1978. As required by Section 63 and Schedule 9 of the Act we have now reviewed the electoral arrangements for that county, using the procedures we had set out in our Report No 6.
2. We informed the Hertfordshire County Council in a consultation letter dated 30 April 1979 that we proposed to conduct the review, and sent copies of the letter to all local authorities and parish meetings in the county, to the MPs representing the constituencies concerned, to the headquarters of the main political parties and to the editors both of local newspapers circulating in the county and of the local government press. Notices in the local press announced the start of the review and invited comments from members of the public and from interested bodies.
3. On 20 September 1979 the County Council submitted to us a draft scheme in which they suggested 77 electoral divisions for the county, each returning one member in accordance with Section 6(2)(a) of the Act.
4. We considered this scheme together with the views expressed by local interests. On 13 February 1980 we issued draft proposals which we sent to all those who had received our consultation letter, or commented on the County Council's draft scheme. Notices were inserted in the local press announcing that the draft proposals had been issued and could be inspected at the County Council's offices.
5. We based our draft proposals on the County Council's draft scheme, though we made certain modifications designed to improve the balance between divisions or districts. Several of these modifications were derived from local comments made about the draft scheme.

6. The modifications we made were as follows:

(a) Broxbourne District

We renamed the County Council's proposed 'Cheshunt South East' electoral division 'Waltham Cross'.

(b) Hertsmere District

We replaced the 7 electoral divisions proposed by the County Council by an alternative scheme for 7 divisions proposed by the Hertsmere District Labour Party.

(c) North Hertfordshire District

We renamed the County Council's proposed St Paul's electoral division 'Knebworth and Codicote'.

(d) St Albans District

We replaced 6 of the 10 electoral divisions proposed by the County Council by 6 divisions proposed by the St Albans Constituency Labour Party.

7. We received comments in response to our draft proposals from the County Council, three district councils, five parish councils, two town councils, four district councillors, one parish councillor, twenty-six political associations, two residents/ratepayers' associations, one pensioners' association and forty-eight individuals. A list of those who wrote to us is given at Appendix 1 to this Report.

8. The Hertfordshire County Council accepted our draft proposals for all districts with the exception of Hertsmere and St Albans. With regard to Hertsmere they contended that the arrangements in their draft scheme were preferable to those in our draft proposals as they followed recognised boundaries, particularly in the Potters Bar area, preserved the historical connection between Elstree and Borehamwood and kept the village of Radlett within a single division. The County Council also stated that the inequalities of representation contained in their draft scheme for Hertsmere would be mitigated by alterations in planned development, though complete revised forecast figures of electorate for the areas involved were not available and the full implications of these alterations could not be examined in detail.

9. In relation to the St Albans District the County Council contended that our draft proposals had no numerical advantage over their original scheme, which had avoided splitting the Parish of Sandridge and combining rural and urban wards in the same division.

10. The other comments we received can be summarised as follows:

(a) The Hertfordshire County Conservative Federation and the East Hertfordshire Conservative and Unionist Association both objected to our draft proposals for the Hertsmere and St Albans districts and supported the draft scheme put forward by the County Council.

(b) Hertfordshire County Labour Party supported our draft proposals and in particular the proposals for Hertsmere and St Albans.

(c) Dacorum District

Dacorum District Council, the Hemel Hempstead Constituency Conservative Association, the Berkhamsted Branch of the Young Conservatives and four private individuals wrote in support of our draft proposals. Another private individual wrote suggesting alternative names for the Bridgewater electoral division.

(d) East Hertfordshire District

East Hertfordshire District Council submitted no observations on our draft proposals. Little Hadham Parish Council wished their parish to be transferred from the Braughing to the Sawbridgeworth electoral division. The East Herts Constituency Liberal Association and the East Herts Divisional Liberal Association independently put forward the same alternative scheme for the Bishop's Stortford area. A private individual suggested that the prefix 'Hertford' be placed before the names of the St Andrews and All Saints electoral divisions to avoid confusion with ecclesiastical parishes of the same name, and also reiterated suggestions he had previously made for the rearrangement of the district wards forming the Hertford electoral divisions.

(e) Hertsmeré District

The Hertsmeré Borough Council objected to our draft proposals for all the electoral divisions in the district on the grounds that they used poor boundaries. and supported the draft scheme put forward by the County Council. Cllr M Colne, on behalf of the Bushey Liberal Association, objected to the Watling, Aldenham and Bushey Heath electoral divisions and supported the County Council's draft scheme. The South Hertfordshire Conservative Association objected to our draft proposals for the Potters Bar, Aldenham, Elstree and Bushey areas and supported the County Council's draft scheme. The North Bushey Residents' Association, Pensioners' Voice (North Bushey Branch) and a private individual all objected to Bushey being included in the Aldenham electoral division on the grounds that the two areas were too diverse for one county councillor to represent satisfactorily. The South Hertfordshire Division Liberal Association put forward their own alternative to the Aldenham, Borehamwood West and Borehamwood East electoral divisions. Aldenham Parish Council, the Radlett Ratepayers' Association, the Radlett Branch of the South Herts Conservative Association, Borough Cllr G A Nunn, Parish Councillor G D C Hicks and thirty-six individuals all objected to the proposals for the Aldenham and Watling electoral divisions on the grounds, broadly, that they divided up the Aldenham and Radlett areas. Most of these comments, either directly or by implication, favoured the draft scheme put forward by the County Council.

Five separate Potters Bar branches of the South Herts Conservative Association preferred the County Council's draft scheme, opposing our draft proposals for the Potters Bar area mainly on the grounds that they ignored well established electoral boundaries.

Our draft proposals were supported by Elstree Town Council, Potters Bar Liberal Association, South Herts Constituency Labour Party (Borehamwood Members' Branch), the South Herts Constituency Labour Party, Cllr J Nolan and four private individuals.

(f) North Hertfordshire District

Royston Town Council wished us to include some of the surrounding rural parishes with the town itself in the Royston electoral division. Hitchin Constituency Labour Party put forward suggestions for an adjustment to the boundary between two divisions in the town of Hitchin; and Cllr M Stears proposed the transfer of the parish of Kings Walden from the Offa to the Knebworth and Codicote electoral division.

(g) St Albans District

St Albans City Council made no observations on our draft proposals which received support from London Colney and Redbourn Parish Councils, Batchwood Branch (St Albans) Labour Party, St Albans Constituency Labour Party, St Stephens Branch Labour Party, St Albans Constituency Labour Party, Redbourn Branch, St Peters Branch Labour Party and two private individuals - Redbourn Parish Council expressing particular opposition to being included in an electoral division with Wheathampstead Parish as they would have been in the County Council's draft scheme. Our proposals were opposed by the Sandridge Parish Council and the St Albans Constituency Conservative Association, who preferred the draft scheme for the reasons advanced by the County Council and referred to in paragraph 9 above.

(h) Stevenage District

Stevenage Borough Council had no observations to make and the only comment received in relation to this district was from Cllr James Boyd, Leader of the Conservative Group, Stevenage Borough Council, who supported our draft proposals.

(j) Watford District

Watford Borough Council supported our draft proposals for the district.

11. When we came to reassess our draft proposals we took account of all the comments we had received and came to the following conclusions:-

(a) Dacorum District

There appeared to be no support for the name change proposed by a private individual, and all the other comments were in support of our draft proposals. We decided therefore not to make the suggested change.

(b) East Hertfordshire District

We considered the suggestions put forward by the Little Hadham Parish Council about the boundary between the Braughing and Sawbridgeworth divisions, and by the two Liberal Associations about the two Bishop's Stortford divisions, but we saw no sufficient justification for accepting them particularly in view of the more even standard of representation achieved by our draft proposals. Nor did we see any advantage in placing the prefix 'Hertford' before the 'All Saints' and 'St Andrews' electoral divisions, as suggested by a private individual, or in adopting the same private individual's suggestions for the arrangement of the Hertford divisions.

(c) Hertsmere District

The proposals for this district were by far the most contentious and we gave particularly careful consideration to all the views expressed about our draft proposals. It was clear that there was a considerable measure of support for the view that we should, in whole or in part, revert to the arrangements in the County Council's draft scheme. The draft proposals did, however, offer a better standard of representation and it seemed to us unlikely that the changes in planned development to which the County Council referred would have a significant effect on this comparison. The essential question therefore was whether there were other features in the County Council's draft scheme arrangements which gave them an overriding advantage over the draft proposals. In looking at this question we distinguished between the two divisions for the Potters Bar area on the one hand, and the remaining five divisions of the district on the other, since the draft scheme and the draft proposals followed a common boundary between these two parts of the district.

As far as the Potters Bar area was concerned the main advantages claimed for the County Council's scheme were that it kept more closely to clear, well-known, or traditional boundaries between communities. Whilst we appreciated the value that was attached to this factor there was by no means unanimity in favour of a departure from our draft proposals and we did not see it as overriding the advantage of the more even standard of representation produced by our draft proposals.

The issues in the remaining 5 divisions were more complex and were inextricably interlinked. The main advantages claimed for the County Council's draft scheme were that it preserved the historical connexion between Elstree and Borehamwood, that it represented Bushey as a complete and separate community, and that it respected the unity of the Aldenham parish and the village of Radlett. We were impressed by the wide variety of organisations and individuals and the evident strength of their feelings in opposition to our draft proposals, although there was also some support for them from other quarters. It is true that our draft proposals would have produced a more even standard of representation but the County Council's draft scheme still represented an acceptable standard. We decided that on balance it would be in the interests of effective and convenient local government to revert to the County Council's draft scheme for these five divisions.

(d) North Hertfordshire District

The alternative arrangements suggested by Royston Town Council were no better in terms of representational standards and we saw no other advantages that would lead us to prefer them to our draft proposals. The suggestions made by the Hitchin Constituency Labour Party and by Cllr. Stears showed no significant numerical improvement on our draft proposals; both involved the division of district wards and we saw no advantage in adopting either.

(e) St Albans district

Both the draft scheme and the alternative we adopted as our draft proposals gave similar standards of representation. In adopting our draft proposals we had made our choice on the grounds that they would meet various local objections put forward against the County Council's draft scheme. These included comments from the parish of Wheathampstead objecting to the formation of an electoral division which joined them with Redbourn; Redbourn Parish Council also strongly resisted such a link when responding to our draft proposals. The St Albans City Council made no observations on our draft proposals and as noted in para 10 (g) above there was specific support for them from a number of different quarters. While we gave careful consideration to the objections made by the County Council and others we decided against any modification of the arrangements we had proposed.

12. In the light of the conclusions listed in para 11 above we decided to confirm our draft proposals as our final proposals subject to the substitution of 5 of the divisions proposed by the County Council for Hertsmere District as described in paragraph 11(c) above.

13. Details of these final proposals are set out in Schedules 1 and 2 to this report and on the attached map. Schedule 1 gives the names of the electoral divisions. A detailed description of the boundaries of the proposed electoral divisions, as defined on the map, is set out in Schedule 2.
