Comment text:

Whilst I can understand the drive to equalise the number of electors represented by each councillor, some thought needs to be given to the number of communities too. Our ward contains four parishes, but less than two thousand electors so there will be pressure to increase the number of communities. However, this creates a significant problem for a councillor doing his/her job properly. Our councillor already has problems with clashing parish council meetings which would only become worse if the number of communities was increased. Also each community has its own peculiar needs/concerns so in our case that probably represents four times the work load of a councillor representing one ward with 2000 electors.
