Comment text:

Recently submissions have been made by the Staunton Parish Council to have Staunton and Corse represented by one Ward and also to merge the two Parish Councils, as we are but one community. As a parishioner of Corse, whilst your proposed Ward of Hartpury and Redmarley sees Staunton and Corse in the same Ward, I am concerned by the large number (8) of Parishes grouped in to this proposed new Ward; this is too many even for two Councillors to manage for effective and convenient Local Government. I would like to propose that the Parishes of Staunton, Corse and Hartpury are formed in to one Ward (Hartpury Ward?) with one Councillor. The Parishes of Redmarley, Bromesberrow, Pauntley and Upleadon could then be formed in to the Redmarley Ward(?) with one Councillor. The Parish of Rudford & Highleaden could be joined with the new Ward of Longhope and Huntley with two Councillors serving five Parishes. I believe that this would provide less of a challenge, both physically and geographically, for the elected District Councillors in fulfilling their duty to their electorate and better serve the parishioners when seeking consultations with their District Councillor.
