

Cleveland Police has made good progress in achieving its savings for the comprehensive spending review period but crime levels are some cause for concern

Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) has today published a report on Cleveland Police's progress in meeting the challenges of the 2010 comprehensive spending review.

A thematic report, Policing in Austerity: One Year On, found that police forces across England and Wales have risen to the financial challenge of the spending review, cutting their spending while largely maintaining the service they provide to the public; but HMIC has some concerns about whether all forces have transformed their efficiency to the extent that this can be sustained through the next three years (and into future spending reviews).

Based on the data provided by the force, HMIC found that:

- Cleveland Police needs to save £26 million between March 2011 and March 2015. By spring 2012, they had planned how to save 99% of this amount.
- The force is planning to cut its total workforce number (i.e. police officers, police staff and police community support officers) by 750 between March 2010 and March 2015.
- 270 of these will be police officer posts; this means there will be 15% fewer officers in Cleveland (compared to a 15% officer reduction across England and Wales as a whole).
- By 2015 85% of its remaining workforce will be in frontline roles. Many non-frontline functions (such as finance and human resources) are already being provided by the force's private sector partner.
- The proportion of officers in frontline roles will increase between March 2010 and March 2015 (79% vs. 93%) This is the biggest increase in England and Wales, and means that Cleveland Police will have a greater proportion of police officers on the front line than most other forces.
- Crime increased in Cleveland between December 2010 and December 2011. This is out of step with what's happening across England and Wales as a whole. However, HMIC is confident that the force is taking action to address this.
- 84% of victims in Cleveland were satisfied with the service from Cleveland Police, which is in step with other forces.

HM Inspector of Constabulary for the Northern Region, Roger Baker, said:

“The force has delivered a comprehensive change programme which has put it in a good position to achieve the required savings target by the end of 2015.

“Although Cleveland Police is making greater reductions to police officer numbers than many other forces, it plans to dedicate 93% of its police officers to frontline roles by 2015 – a greater proportion than in most other forces. This should help the force in its efforts to reverse the upward trend in crime and to keep the public in Cleveland safe.”

The full report for Cleveland Police, along with the national thematic review ‘Policing in austerity: One year on’, can be found at www.hmic.gov.uk

Notes to editors

1. The full thematic report ‘Policing in austerity: One year on’ and supporting material can be found at www.hmic.gov.uk
2. The review ‘Adapting to Austerity’ published in July 2011 and the accompanying force reports can be found at www.hmic.gov.uk
3. In October 2010, the government announced that the central funding provided to the police service would reduce by 20% in the four years between March 2011 and March 2015.
4. Figures are rounded (financial figures to the nearest million and workforce figures to the nearest 10) and financial figures are in cash prices.
5. For further information, or to request an interview, HMIC’s press office can be contacted during office hours from 8:30am – 5:30pm Monday – Friday on 0203 513 0600.
6. Her Majesty’s Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) is an independent inspectorate, inspecting policing in the public interest, and rigorously examines the effectiveness of police forces and authorities to tackle crime and terrorism, improve criminal justice and raise confidence. HMIC inspects and regulates all 43 police forces in England and Wales together with other major policing bodies such as the Serious Organised Crime Agency, the Police Service of Northern Ireland and the British Transport Police and HMRC.
7. HMIC’s out-of-hours press office line for urgent media enquiries is 07836 217 729.
8. Her Majesty’s Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) carried out an inspection of all 43 police forces in England and Wales in spring 2011, to see how they were planning to meet this financial challenge. When the results were published in July 2011 (search for ‘Valuing the Police’ on www.hmic.gov.uk), we committed to returning one year later to report on progress, and to assess whether there had been any impact on the service provided to the public.