

Hampshire Constabulary has made good progress in achieving its savings for the comprehensive spending review period.

Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) has today published a report on Hampshire Constabulary's progress in meeting the challenges of the 2010 comprehensive spending review.

A thematic report, Policing in Austerity: One Year On, found that police forces across England and Wales have risen to the financial challenge of the spending review, cutting their spending while largely maintaining the service they provide to the public; but HMIC has some concerns about whether all forces have transformed their efficiency to the extent that this can be sustained through the next three years (and into future spending reviews).

Based on the data provided by the force, HMIC found that:

- Money: Hampshire Constabulary needs to save £48 million between March 2011 and March 2015. By spring 2012 they had planned how to save 98% of this amount.
- People: The force is planning to cut its total workforce number (i.e. police officers, police staff and police community support officers) by 900 between March 2010 and March 2015.
- 390 of these will be police officer posts; this means there will be 10% fewer officers in Hampshire (compared with a 10% officer reduction across England and Wales).
- The front line: By 2015 71% of its workforce will be in frontline roles. This is an increase, but is still a lower proportion than in other forces.
- Similarly, while the proportion of police officers on the frontline will also increase between March 2010 and March 2015 (from 81% to 87%), it will still be lower than most other forces.
- Crime: While overall crime rates are falling across England and Wales, they were static in Hampshire between December 2010 and December 2011.
- Victim satisfaction: 82% of victims in Hampshire are satisfied with the overall service provided by the force. This is lower than England and Wales as a whole.

HM Inspector of Constabulary for the Eastern Region, Zoe Billingham, said:

“Hampshire Constabulary has a good history of bringing down costs while increasing efficiency and effectiveness; and this has stood it in good stead as it worked to understand the financial challenge.

“The constabulary has put in place a comprehensive change programme to manage the reductions in its budget. As a result, it is in a good position to achieve their savings target by March 2015.

“Although (like other forces) Hampshire Constabulary is cutting posts, it plans to increase the proportion of its workforce and police officers working in frontline roles by 2015. This should help the constabulary in its efforts to bring down crime and keep local communities safe.”

8. Her Majesty’s Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) carried out an inspection of all 43 police forces in England and Wales in spring 2011, to see how they were planning to meet this financial challenge. When the results were published in July 2011 (search for ‘Valuing the Police’ on www.hmic.gov.uk), we committed to returning one year later to report on progress, and to assess whether there had been any impact on the service provided to the public.
