

North Yorkshire Police has made good progress in achieving its savings for the comprehensive spending review period.

Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) has today published a report on North Yorkshire Police's progress in meeting the challenges of the 2010 comprehensive spending review.

A thematic report, Policing in Austerity: One Year On, found that police forces across England and Wales have risen to the financial challenge of the spending review, cutting their spending while largely maintaining the service they provide to the public; but HMIC has some concerns about whether all forces have transformed their efficiency to the extent that this can be sustained through the next three years (and into future spending reviews).

Based on the data provided by the force, HMIC found that:

- North Yorkshire Police needs to save £19 million between March 2011 and March 2015. By spring 2012 they had planned how to save 86% of this amount.
- The force is planning to cut its total workforce number (i.e. police officers, police staff and police community support officers) by 390 between March 2010 and March 2015.
- 170 of these will be police officer posts; this means there will be 11% fewer officers in North Yorkshire (compared with a 10% average officer reduction across England and Wales).
- By 2015, 73% of its workforce will be in the frontline. This is broadly in line with England and Wales as a whole.
- The proportion of officers in frontline roles will increase between March 2010 and March 2015 (from 88% to 91%) This means North Yorkshire Police will have a greater proportion of police officers on the front line than most other forces.
- Crime is decreasing in North Yorkshire at a rate in line with the rest of England and Wales as a whole.
- 87% of victims in North Yorkshire were satisfied with the service from North Yorkshire Police, which is higher than the national figure.

HM Inspector of Constabulary for the Northern Region, Roger Baker, said:

“North Yorkshire Police has put in place a comprehensive change programme to manage the reductions in its budget. As a result they are in a good position to achieve their savings target by March 2015, and may even exceed it.

“Although the force is cutting police officer posts, it will have 91% of its officers in frontline policing roles by 2015. This is a higher proportion than most other forces, and will help North Yorkshire Police continue to reduce crime and keep the public safe.”
