

Northumbria Police has made good progress in achieving its savings for the comprehensive spending review period.

Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) has today published a report on Northumbria Police's progress in meeting the challenges of the 2010 comprehensive spending review.

A thematic report, Policing in Austerity: One Year On, found that police forces across England and Wales have risen to the financial challenge of the spending review, cutting their spending while largely maintaining the service they provide to the public; but HMIC has some concerns about whether all forces have transformed their efficiency to the extent that this can be sustained through the next three years (and into future spending reviews).

Based on the data provided by the force, HMIC found that:

- Northumbria Police needs to save £80 million between March 2011 and March 2015. By spring 2012 they had planned how to save 99% of this amount.
- The force is planning to cut its total workforce number (i.e. police officers, police staff and police community support officers) by 1,890 between March 2010 and March 2015.
- 730 of these will be police officer posts; this means there will be 17% fewer officers in Northumbria (compared with a 10% average officer reduction across England and Wales).
- The force plans to have 79% of its workforce in frontline roles by 2015, which is a higher percentage than most other forces.
- The proportion of officers in frontline roles will increase between March 2010 and March 2015 (from 84% to 91%) Again, this means Northumbria Police will have a greater proportion of police officers on the front line than most other forces.
- The force continues to drive down crime and has achieved a much higher than average rate of overall crime reduction this year.
- 93% of victims in Northumbria were satisfied with the overall service provided by the force, which is much higher than the national figure.

HM Inspector of Constabulary for the Northern Region, Roger Baker, said:

“Northumbria Police is delivering a comprehensive change programme to address the financial challenge of the 2010 spending review. As a result, they are in a good position to achieve their savings target by March 2015, and may even exceed it.

“Although the force is cutting significantly more police officer posts than many other forces in England & Wales, by March 2015 the proportion of officers dedicated to frontline policing will be one of the highest in the country. This will be an important advantage as Northumbria Police works to maintain its impressive performance in bringing down crime levels.”

8. Her Majesty’s Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) carried out an inspection of all 43 police forces in England and Wales in spring 2011, to see how they were planning to meet this financial challenge. When the results were published in July 2011 (search for ‘Valuing the Police’ on www.hmic.gov.uk), we committed to returning one year later to report on progress, and to assess whether there had been any impact on the service provided to the public.
