

South Wales Police has made good progress in achieving its savings for the comprehensive spending review period.

Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) has today published a report on South Wales Police's progress in meeting the challenges of the 2010 comprehensive spending review.

A thematic report, Policing in Austerity: One Year On, found that police forces across England and Wales have risen to the financial challenge of the spending review, cutting their spending while largely maintaining the service they provide to the public; but HMIC has some concerns about whether all forces have transformed their efficiency to the extent that this can be sustained through the next three years (and into future spending reviews).

Based on the data provided by the force, HMIC found that:

- South Wales Police needs to save £43 million between March 2011 and March 2015. By spring 2012 they had planned how to exceed this amount.
- The force is planning to cut 270 police officer posts by 2015. This means there will be 9% fewer officers in South Wales (compared with the 10% average reduction across England and Wales).
- By 2015 74% of its total workforce (i.e. police officers, police staff and police community support officers) will be in frontline roles. This is in step with most other forces.
- The proportion of officers in frontline roles will increase between March 2010 and March 2015 (from 82% to 88%). Again, this figure is broadly in line with most other forces.
- The force continues to drive down crime and has achieved a much higher reduction than in England and Wales as a whole between December 2010 and December 2011.
- 87% of victims in South Wales were satisfied with the service from South Wales Police, which is a higher than the national figure. .

HM Inspector of Constabulary for the Western Region, Dru Sharpling, said:

"South Wales Police has a good history of reducing cost through careful management and business planning. This has placed them in a good position to meet the financial challenges of the 2010 spending review.

"Although police numbers will fall, the force is planning an increase in the proportion of the workforce and of officers in frontline crime fighting roles. This should place the force in a good position to focus on delivering crime reduction and making its communities feel safe.”

6. Her Majesty’s Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) is an independent inspectorate, inspecting policing in the public interest, and rigorously examines the effectiveness of police forces and authorities to tackle crime and terrorism, improve criminal justice and raise confidence. HMIC inspects and regulates all 43 police forces in England and Wales together with other major policing bodies such as the Serious Organised Crime Agency, the Police Service of Northern Ireland and the British Transport Police and HMRC.
7. HMIC’s out-of-hours press office line for urgent media enquiries is 07836 217 729.
8. Her Majesty’s Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) carried out an inspection of all 43 police forces in England and Wales in spring 2011, to see how they were planning to meet this financial challenge. When the results were published in July 2011 (search for ‘Valuing the Police’ on www.hmic.gov.uk), we committed to returning one year later to report on progress, and to assess whether there had been any impact on the service provided to the public.
