

Dear Industry Colleagues,

All experts and best forecasts suggest that as a result of COVID-19 we will be forced into a new way of working for several weeks if not months. However business must continue, especially food manufacturing. Let us reassure you that in whilst respecting and adhering to government advice and guidelines we have quickly adapted to work in a way that protects our team and offers you the best service. Please be reassured during this time that:

- Our whole team is operating remotely and where necessary in isolation on company property
- We are receiving and processing your orders without disruption
- We processing and delivering samples safely
- We continue to give the immediate technical backup you expect

To support any ongoing development or troubleshooting, we are ready to connect to you to carry out remote trials and present application work live via video link, sending finished product for you to taste simultaneously or after the session for review.

In these worrying and strange times – contact us immediately if we can help , either via your usual Ulrick & Short contact, direct to the office on 01977 62 00 11 or at enquiries@ulrickandshort.com – anytime, we are here to work with and support you.
