

Further to the update last week regarding the piling works ongoing at Harvil Road

Towards the end of today there may be some short intervals of louder trials which should last no longer than 15-20 minutes while we test the effectiveness of some additional localised noise mitigation.

Once these trials have been undertaken and they have confirmed the noise levels for the revised methodology, we plan to resume our activities to continue the installation of the remaining piles which as stated previously will be considerably quieter than earlier in the year.
