Book your place to hear about and discuss the Law Commission's recent consultation papers, and contribute your voice to the debate.

The right to manage is a way in which leaseholders can gain control over the management of their buildings. The right to manage consultation paper sets out provisional proposals to make the procedure simpler, quicker and more flexible.

Commonhold is an alternative to leasehold ownership, enabling freehold ownership of flats, interdependent commercial units and other types of property. The commonhold consultation paper sets out provisional proposals to reform the law of commonhold to make it a workable alternative to leasehold.

The event will cover:

Commonhold

The discussion will focus on converting to commonhold, making commonhold work in mixed-use developments and financing the commonhold.

Right to manage

We intend to give a brief overview of our key proposals on the right to manage and allow the opportunity for discussion.
