

Dunkeyson, Nicholas

---

[REDACTED]

---

From: James Vaughan [REDACTED]
Sent: 03 May 2012 15:20
To: Reviews@
Subject: South Oxfordshire

The Review Officer (South Oxfordshire)
Dear Sir
The idea that Councillors are qualified to make decisions is crazy.
Councillors require no training in a subject and yet make the decisions.
Before any Councillor makes a decision they must have the necessary qualification in the subject and proven experience.
36 Councillors is a step in the right direction and each should represent a minimum number of electors.
I think 36 Councillors is too many and 30 should be a starting figure, It may work out that even fewer than 30 Councillors are required.
In view of there already being, Parish, Town and County Councillors it may work out that the number of District Councillors required is between 0 and 30.
Yours Faithfully
D James Vaughan