

BernardCadogan

[REDACTED]

Member of the public

[REDACTED] 07/04/2013 22:12

Since I have only received notice of this change less than one day before the consultation period ends I have not been able to review all the disparate items in full - the random spreading of information across this website makes a review particularly difficult. However it strikes me that a reduction from 53 to 36 councillors in one step is too drastic a move to make, particularly in the light of the comment that councils of less than 30 members may not be able to function effectively. I think you should seriously consider a less drastic reduction (to between 40 and 45) as a first step.