I am writing as a local resident in Nottingham North living In Basford and working in Bulwell for over forty years. I am also both a local community activist and volunteer all of which means I have an understanding of the challenges facing the local community and the value of having three local councillors to help meet those challenges. Having three local councillors particularly in Bulwell for instance one of the most deprived areas in the country means the responsibility can be shared, examples being one councillor attending an important community meeting another going to see a local resident with the other councillor going on a ward walk all on the same evening. Having three councillors also allows for variety in gender and ethnicity and in doing so represents the diverse cultures in Nottingham which in turn helps to build trust and good community contacts across the city to the benefit of everybody. This is something I do not believe would happen if there were only one local councillor as they would simply not have the time even more so if they worked. Overall I feel having three local councillors allows for a variety of skills and abilities all of which can be used for the benefit of the local community. I strongly feel all of the above are good reasons to keep the boundaries in Nottingham City the same as they are now. Michael Savage.
